Viva's A TRIP TO THE BOTTOM OF THE WORLD WITH MOUSE is beautifully written and illustrated in an understated but wholly engaging way. One thing about early readers is that children tend not to re-read them. I think Viva's book deftly sidesteps that problem. Lap listeners and early readers will enjoy the first trip through its pages much more ...

The Bottom has some of the island charm and is definitely worth a stroll but it also is the "capital" with some more administrative, and thus less interesting, buildings than Windwardside. If you want to benefit from a much better "unspoiled queen" experience as the Saba people qualify their island you should go until there.
