Ned Davis wrote the book "Being Right or Making Money" in 1991. We mention it this morning, because we are doing a conference call today with Ned at 10:00 a.m. (register here). As most of you know, Ned is one of the best on Wall Street. The book resides on my desk, because I often refer to it. In the introduction Ned writes (referring to himself):

The key is money management. You must take your losses quickly and keep them small and let your profits run and make them worthwhile. So, in conclusion, what I've learned after all these years is that we are in the business of making mistakes . I've never heard Peter Lynch give an interview where he didn't point out some mistake he has made. And he has said, "If you are right half of the time (in the markets), you have a terrific score.

Most people would probably answer "no" to all three questions. And if that is you, you probably are denying yourself the opportunity to make money simply because being right is more important than making money. Some of you might be saying, "How could you be wrong 90% of the time and still make money?"

Being Right or Making Money by Ned Davis, Hardcover ...

Investment strategist and author, Ned Davis, wrote a great book back in 1991 called, Being Right or Making Money. What Ned Davis says he learned back then was the importance of not fighting trends, that you could be 100% right and not make any money if you bet against a market that ignored your thesis. In essence, Ned Davis learned not to throw one's diligent work out the door but to also learn to be in harmony with the market and not to fight a trend.
