A bokken is a Japanese wooden sword used for training in kenjutsu. It is usually the size and shape of a katana, but is sometimes shaped like other swords, such as the wakizashi and tantō. Some ornamental bokken are decorated with mother-of-pearl work and elaborate carvings. Sometimes it is spelled "boken" in English. Bokken are traditionally composed of red oak or white oak, although any hard wood can be used. In comparison, practice

Bokken - Wikipedia

The Bokken is a wooden saber used in various Japanese martial arts: (ninjutsu, kenjutsu, aikido...). The idea of this sabre was to replace the katana of steel when carrying out the training. This wooden saber becomes popular between 1300 and 1500 AD, because it was used by warriors drawn to the art of dueling, rather than fighting until death against an opponent on the battlefield.

In martial arts, bokken is used in aikido, kendo, kenjutsu and jodo - and while bokken often appear in popular culture (and are even used by modern police forces), they should not be confused with the related, but different, art of Japanese katana training. Our selection of high-quality bokken include versions made from foam, synthetic polymer substitutes, and polypropylene, in addition to authentic wooden bokken for martial arts training and competition.
