Constantine the Great moved the Roman capital to Byzantium, which became Constantinople, until the fall of the Byzantine Empire in 1453. However, there was initially no hard line between the Byzantine and Roman empires, and early Byzantine architecture is stylistically and structurally indistinguishable from earlier Roman architecture.

Monuments of Athens were lost during the years of the formation of the new capital (19th c.), or in the process of revealing the antiquities of classical era. A specimen of measure and harmony, remnants of the medieval past, the surviving Byzantine and post-Byzantine churches of Athens are the link between the ancient and the modern city and inspire artists to the present day.
