Environmental perception must be acute in order to navigate through a crowd safely and efficiently. One of the influences of environmental perception is auditory perception. Things that a person hears in her surroundings are processed by the brain. Auditory perception processes both foreground and background sounds.

What Is Environmental Perception? (with pictures)

Environmental risk perception stimulates people's sense of urgency and responsibility to protect the environment and encourages more environmental protection behaviors [1, 2, 8]. However, other scholars have found that there is a discrepancy between environmental risk perception and environmental protection behaviors [9, 10].
