Boris Johnson: Don't break your promise on food and animal welfare standards in trade deals. The government is backtracking on its promise to protect the UK's high food and animal welfare standards when signing trade deals with countries like the US. It means products like hormone-pumped beef and chlorinated chicken could be heading our way - but this isn't just about food safety and animal ...

Food Matters is a lightweight (pun intended) look at how your eating choices affect the environment, your health, and your weight. Mark Bittman provides familiar arguments in favor of enjoying food choices that don't use as many resources that are also good for you to eat. To underscore the point, he describes how he lost weight by changing to more environmentally friendly choices (fruits ...
