The Square Deal was President Theodore Roosevelt's domestic program, which reflected his three major goals: conservation of natural resources, control of corporations, and consumer protection.. These three demands are often referred to as the "three Cs" of Roosevelt's Square Deal. Thus, it aimed at helping middle class citizens and involved attacking plutocracy and bad trusts while at the same ...

That same day, Roosevelt told the Silver Bow Labor and Trades Assembly of Butte that he was “one who tries to be an American president, acting upon the principle of giving a square deal to each and every one.” Roosevelt specifically applied the Square Deal to African American citizens, as he did in a letter in June 1903 to journalist Rollo Ogden: “[A]ll I wanted was a square deal for the negro. If he is fit to vote by the test we apply to a white man, let him vote.
