Re: How to disable PATS When I was in a lockshop I always encouraged folks to make a "mechanical" copy of their responder type key (a standard blank with no chip in it) and put it in their wallet, etc., so they could simply unlock their car to get to their $100.00 key if they ever locked it inside.

How to disable PATS - Ford Ranger Forum

The solution is to have a 3rd party "reflash" your ECU to disable PATS functionality. Looks like it costs $300-$400 for this service. The other less elegant solution I read was to bury the PATS transceiver and key together up under the dash somewhere and use an old school electromechanical keyswitch for traditional starter functionality.
