How To Stop Your Doctor

Being a victim of medical incompetence I learned the hard way that not all doctors are great. Do your homework before you let one loose on your body. Be very wary of anything you are asked to sign - don't just blindly trust them and sign it, even if they are staring intently at you, read every word and make sure you understand what you are signing.

Please tell your doctor the truth. Don ' t say something that is not true just to be polite. It is not your job to entertain your doctor or make your doctor feel better. You do not need to make pleasant small talk. Use your time to tell your doctor what is really going on with your health and symptoms.

How to Stop Hiding From Your Doctor – How to Get On

Shaving a few years—or even a few decades—off of your age at the doctor's office might feel more like stretching the truth than telling a lie, but it can ultimately prevent your doctor from doing their job properly. For instance, if you were to say you're in your 30s instead of revealing that you're actually in your late 40s, your doctor might mistake those hot flashes as a symptom of hyperthyroidism instead of a symptom of menopause.
