Bloody Men: Bloody men are like bloody buses— You wait for about a year And as soon as one approaches your stop Two or three others appear. You look at them flashing their indicators, Offering you a ride. You're trying to read the destination, You haven't much time to decide. If you make a mistake, there is no turning back.

Bloody Men - University of Cambridge

"Bloody men are like bloody buses — You wait for about a year And as soon as one approaches your stop Two or three others appear. You look at them flashing their indicators, Offering you a ride. You're trying to read the destinations, You haven't much time to decide. If you make a mistake, there is no turning back.

Quote by Wendy Cope: "Bloody men are like bloody buses ...

Typically, though, like buses, another one has just come along. Saw this and thought of you." The idea is used in informal everyday conversations, in emails, and even in journalism, as the examples below show: These days, government policy papers are like London buses. You wait ages for one, and then three come along at once.
