Monster Study Guide

Monster primarily explores themes relating to incarceration, injustice, and being poor or black or both in America's inner-cities. Many of Myers's numerous other works explore similar topics, but perhaps the most striking, since it directly relays his own childhood experience, is his memoir Bad Boy , which recounts Myers' childhood in Harlem.

The Monster Study: Stuttering Experiment - Learning History

the "monster" study by some of the persons who were associated with the Stuttering Research Program at the University of Iowa during the 1940s and 1950s and who knew of its existence. This study and the events that presumably occurred following it are described here.

THE "MONSTER" STUDY

The so-called 'Monster Study' on children's stuttering qualifies for this series on weird psychology on three grounds. First it had extremely shaky (practically non-existent) ethical standards. Second its results were never published for fear it would be likened to experiments carried out by the Nazis (Rothwell, 2003).

The 'Monster Study' on Stuttering - PsyBlog

The Monster Study was a stuttering experiment performed on 22 orphan children in Davenport, Iowa in 1939. It was conducted by Wendell Johnson at the University of Iowa. Graduate student Mary Tudor conducted the experiment under Johnson's supervision. Half of the children received positive speech therapy, praising the fluency of their speech, and the other half, negative speech therapy, belittling the children for speech imperfections. Many of the normal speaking orphan children who received nega
