Multilevel Governance - Gary Marks

Multi-level governance is defined as the vertical (multiple levels) and horizontal (multiple actors) dispersion of central government authority (Bache/Flinders 2004) and refers to both, political structures and decision making processes (Sch\u00e4fer 2010). While governance refers to the \u201egrowing interdependence between governments and non-governmental actors at various territorial levels\u201c (Bache/Flinders 2004, 3) the concept of multi-level governance adds the dimension of scale.

Despite the different concerns of different authors, four common strands emerge that provide a parsimonious definition of multi-level governance that raises clear hypotheses for future research. First, that decision-making at various territorial levels is characterized by the increased participation of non-state actors.

Multi-level Governance - Oxford Scholarship

Multi-level (or multilevel) governance is an approach in political science and public administration theory that originated from studies on European integration. The concept of multi-level governance was developed in the early 1990s. The theory resulted from the study of the new structures that were put in place by the EU (Maastricht Treaty) in 1992.

A Guide to Multi-level Governance - Local 2030

Abstract. The expansion of European foreign and security policy co-operation since the 1970s imposes unique requirements on European Union (EU) member states, and the co-ordination of these various obligations presents a major challenge to the EU's pursuit of a common foreign and security policy (CFSP). However, the past decade has also seen significant progress toward the multi-level governance of EU foreign policy, particularly when compared to the limited policy co-ordination of the ...
