The Death of Stephen It is remarkable how completely Stephen, before his death, is the forerunner of Apostle Paul, both in the form and the matter of this defense. His securing the attention of the Jews by adopting the historical method during his trial is exactly what the Apostle did in the synagogue at Antioch in Pisidia (Acts 13:16 - 22).

STEPHEN AND PAUL 159 were Hellenists. although it would appear that in Paul's case this led to an exaggerated attachment to Jerusalem and the externals of Judaism. whereas Stephen sat more loosely to these. Stephen's success as a miracle-worker and controversialist led to opposition from the leaders of various synagogues.

Of God, Paul's theology grows. Stephen. sermon allowed Paul to remember the about Sarah and Hagar; (Epistle to the Romans) and all that discussion about father Abraham being justified by faith is there in Stephen's speech. Probably Stephen's speech was recorded in Paul's mind as Paul traveled with Luke, Paul told Luke what Stephen had said as Stephen's sermon went deep into Paul's soul and helped in writing the other epistles.

Stephen was "full of grace," and the words of Stephen at the time of his death are a testimony to this fact. He was not an "angry young preacher," a hostile fellow belching forth the fire of hell. He was a man who loved his listeners, who prayed for their forgiveness and salvation. Paul was a delayed answer to this prayer.

And it is not improbable that every time St. Paul was to mention his former persecution of the Church, the face and voice of St. Stephen was the first to come to his mind. It is also of little doubt that the image of St. Stephen falling upon his knees as he courageously awaited his death was one of the primary sources of inspiration St. Paul would draw from in later years for the endurance of his great trials of afflictions.
