Stormy, Misty's Foal is a children's novel written by Marguerite Henry, illustrated by Wesley Dennis, and published by Rand McNally in 1963. It was a sequel to Misty of Chincoteague (1947). Both novels are based on historical characters, human and equine, but many of the facts were changed in the stories.

Misty was in foal with Stormy when a nor'easter struck in March 1962. Misty was put into Ralph and Jeanette Beebe's kitchen in their house for a temporary home since her stable flooded. Due to the elements of the storm, Misty kept postponing giving birth to her foal, so the Beebes decided to take her to Dr. Finney's

I remember reading Misty of Chincoteague as a child. We started with that one and finished. I don't recall reading this one, about her foal born during a hurricane, so it has been a little more fun to read, not knowing what is coming next. Not too many chapter books have held our seven y/o daughter's attention.
